

Missed You

I saw your face today
as I walked down my way
too bad you missed to see
that you were passing me

there was no time to greet
you rushed along the street

I had to let you go
and couldn't say hello

but what a big surprise
to look into your eyes
you still created heat
I still could feel your beat

I still could see the child behind your eyes so wild
the kid that pushed for goal
the girl that touched my soul

your smile seems much colder
we both became older

what taste have you grown?
what love have you known?
what kids have you raised?
what got you amazed?

what made you feel blue?
what did you go through?

missed you

* * *

my feelings were so strong back then when we were young
you were my guiding light
I dreamed of you at night

one kiss could set me free
your love meant all to me
I longed to feel your touch
I wanted you so much

but you refused my heart
and broke it all apart
I stood out in the rain and thought I'd die from pain

now half our life has passed
the time went by so fast
but after all these years
I still can taste my tears

I still have your letter
I should have known better

what taste have you grown?
what love have you known?
what kids have you raised?
what got you amazed?

what made you feel blue?
what did you go through?

missed you

* * *

before I saw your face
I lacked to have your trace
but now and then I thought what struggles have you fought?

did you have gained some wealth?
and what about your health?
has life been nice to you?
did all your dreams come true?

and are your kids as wild
as you when you were child?
do they create your heat?
did they adopt your beat?

how often have you cried?
which of your husbands lied?
and could your living be
much happier with me?

I feared you were drinking and welfare was linked in

what taste have you grown?
what love have you known?
what kids have you raised?
what got you amazed?

what made you feel blue?
what did you go through?
what rings have you worn?
what hearts have you torn?

what taste have you grown?

what love have you known?

what kids have you raised?

what got you amazed?

what made you feel blue?

what did you go through?

what dreams became true?

what happened to you?

missed you